The City of Oakdale has hired a team of consultants, led by PBS&J, to assist in the update of the 1994 Oakdale General Plan. A general plan is a long-range document that sets forth broad goals and policies to guide future growth and preservation of resources in the City. This document is required by State law, and addresses a wide variety of issues such as the City's economic growth, physical development, and social well being. Once adopted, the General Plan is the principal tool for the City to use when evaluating municipal services and land use proposals. All land use and other decisions are governed by the General Plan and must be consistent with the Plan's direction.

The City invites your participation and input throughout the planning effort. Stay connected and let us know what you think!
